Rehoboth Chapel Graveyard Survey

A. INTRODUCTION

1. EARLY HISTORY OF CAPEL REHOBOTH

Capel Rehoboth was founded in 1822 by Rev Thomas Clement ("Gŵr da, cywir a dysgedig"), an Anglican vicar from Llanrhidian, Gower, who bought Bryngroesfach Farm and other local farm land with the aim of building a 'chapel of ease' for local farmers and their families.

On Clement's death in 1824 aged 76, he was buried at Capel Clement in three coffins (lead encased in wood, encased in stone) and he bequeathed the chapel to his great friend, David Davies, a member of Capel Als who was ordained as the new minister of Capel Clement in 1825. Due to legal problems over Clement's will, exploited by Rev Ebenezer Morris, vicar of Llanelli (who was ardently opposed to non-conformism), Capel Clement was demolished by Morris's supporters. David Davies, Samuel Stephens (Gelli Fawr), John Hugh (Ty Canol) & Ann Jenkins (Ty Gwyn) vowed to continue worshipping in local cottages until the new building was erected on land owned by Samuel Stephens in early 1827. As it was just inside the parish of Pembrey, Morris was unable to stop them. The new chapel was renamed Rehoboth, inspired by an incident recorded in Genesis referring to a well in a wide, open space built by the patriarch Isaac. Membership grew to 100 by 1829 with a thriving Sunday School & Ysgol Gân.

Capel Rehoboth is:

- the oldest non-conformist place of worship in our village, predating Horeb by 10 years;
- the 8th oldest of the 38 Independent Chapels in the entire region (in the parishes of: Llanelli, Llangennech, Llannon, Kidwelly, Llangydeyrn, Pembrey). Capel Als is the oldest, having been established in 1780. Rehoboth is the 21st oldest of the 139 non-conformist chapels in the region;
- it is one of only a few still open for worship, not just a monument to the past but a living community of believers, with 200 years of continuous Gospel witness.

2. SOME NOTABLE PEOPLE WITH CONNECTIONS TO REHOBOTH:

- a. LOCAL IMPORTANCE: Rev Henry Evans, minister from 1830-69, used to walk more than 9 miles every Sunday to minister to the congregations at Jerusalem (Pembrey) and Rehoboth. He oversaw the replacement of the old Rehoboth building with a new one by 1858, and the relocation of Clement's remains from Bryngroesfach, where they had been disturbed by Ebenezer Morris's henchmen and whose corpse was robbed of its waistcoat. The new tomb, by the main gate, has the following inscription:

*"Coffin Clement carreg yw,
Tra paro'r byd, fe ddeil ei liw;
Pan elo'r byd yn wenfflam dân
Fe lysg yn wyn fel eira mân."*

Although there is no evidence linking Evans directly to the activities of the Rebecca Rioters, there was a link between his egalitarian preaching, animosity towards the antics of Rev Ebenezer Morris, and the rise of radical politics which led to the ferocity of some of the protests of the Rebecca-ites in the locality. Evans died aged 69 in 1869 and is buried in the graveyard, along with members of his family. He and his wife had four children, three of whom died within three months of each other, aged 18, 21 and 25; his other daughter died aged 29 in 1875.

- b. NATIONAL IMPORTANCE: Rev John Llewelyn Hughes, minister between 1871-1916, saw the chapel become the centre of village cultural and social life. A notable preacher, organiser and academic, he wrote a number of books which were significant in the continued survival and development of the Welsh language. He oversaw an extension of the cemetery and of the church, and the building of the manse on land donated by James Buckley. He died aged 63 in 1916 and is buried in the graveyard.

- c. INTERNATIONAL IMPORTANCE: Rev David Davies's grandson, Llywelyn D Bevan, was a leader of Protestant intellectual and political life in Melbourne, Australia in the later 19th century, friendly with Gladstone, JS Mill, Longfellow and Emerson. He visited Rehoboth, preaching from the pulpit, grateful for the grounding he had received in Five Roads.

3. REHOBOTH'S PLACE IN THE COMMUNITY:

- Preaching the Gospel;
- Education, especially literacy;
- Cultural life, music and eisteddfodau;
- The Welsh language, at a time when Welsh was not given recognition and support, the chapel enabled Welsh to thrive;
- From its origins to today, the chapel has been closely associated with local farms, farmers & their families, providing them with spiritual, educational and practical support.

He was one of ten miners to die at the end of the morning shift when the chain linking together their drams snapped. This sent five drams hurtling more than 1100 yards to the bottom of the drift with disastrous consequences (source, Phil Cullen, welshcoalmines.co.uk) . His wife died 18 months afterwards, aged 24. |

5. SURVEY OF THE GRAVEYARD

This was undertaken during the winter and spring of 2019-202, with thanks to the officers and members of Capel Rehoboth for their kind permission, and their co-operation in its completion.

Parts of the graveyard are very unsafe, with a number of gravestones having been lost or suffered irreparable damage. The wording of each gravestone has been recorded as written; misspellings have not been corrected. Whilst every effort has been made to ensure accuracy of transcription, inevitably there are some inaccuracies as time and the elements have taken their toll.
